Tips to fill them well

Best to have a single one everywhere (saves logistics, helps recognition)

- 64 If handle is name, can use this for Search / niche identifiers
- 150 Hook (why people read/watch you?) → topics / pillars → link CTA, in that order.
Keep the pillar order the same everywhere (eg., book → AI → founder).
Trade-off: you pay for more links vs
use a link-in-bio hub (Linktree/Beacons/your site) vs you only one.

- 30 Keep it identical to IG / YouTube / ~~Pinterest~~
This is the compressed version of your IG credential stack. Keep the same word order (Romance → AI → Founder) for recognition.
emoji = 2 chars each
- 81 Super-tight limit, surgical stuff.
Line breaks aren't reliably supported on TikTok, so keep it to 2 short lines max.
Same single-link game as Instagram.

- 50 Keep same as everywhere 50 chars — room to lead with your real name before the credential stack, no emojis allowed Only ~100 chars show before "more",
lead with most important.
The rest of the 1,000-char limit is for people who click through, so full sentences are fine past that point.
Use all 5 link slots if you can. Cross-link, link the store, your socials, your website

YouTube crops the banner differently across TV/desktop/mobile, so text near the edges can get cut off. Stick to the Canva template's safe-zone guides and keep copy to 2 words max.

Same handle as the other 3.

Pinterest is a search engine first - a consistent handle plus consistent keywords is what drives discovery here, more so than on IG/TikTok.

65 65 char max (30–50 recommended), front-load keywords

500 500 char limit, but only ~160 chars show before truncating

Same single-link gap as Instagram.

Worth fixing here first — Pinterest traffic is more likely to click through than scroll past.

Reusing the YouTube banner keeps your visual identity consistent.

Guesstimate — not verified this session: Pinterest's cover dimensions likely differ from YouTube's 2048×1152, so check Pinterest's own spec before a straight reuse; it may need a light recrop.
